BARBADOS, December 16, 1752.

To His Excellency the Honourable HENRY GREENVILLE, Esq; His Majesty's Captain-General and Governor in Chief, in and over the Islands of Barbados, St. Lucia, Dominico, St. Vincent, Tobago, and all the rest of the Islands, Colonies, and Plantations in America, commonly called or known by the Name of the Carribbee-Islands, lying and being to Windward of Guardaloup; Chancellor, Ordinary, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

The Humble ADDRESS of the General Assembly of the said Island.

May it please your Excellency,

IT is with great pleasure, that we, the representatives of this island in General Assembly, now assembled, take this first opportunity to offer our sincere thanks to your excellency, for your obliging speech on the return of this assembly; and to assure your excellency, that it shall be our chief aim to continue that unanimity in our councils, which we consider as the easy and natural consequence of a prudent and uncorrupt administration.

The several matters which your excellency has been pleased to recommend to our consideration, shall be regarded with all that care and attention they so justly deserve; and such measures pursued, as shall appear to us the fittest for attaining the good ends proposed, and demonstrate the high and grateful sense we entertain of your excellency's affectionate and extensive concern for the welfare and prosperity of this colony.

The occasion, which his majesty in his paternal care, has given us, of forming a new body of laws upon the true principles of our constitution, succinct, clear, and uncontrovertable in their sense and expression; and the assurance which your excellency has so kindly given us of contributing your endeavours for perfecting this arduous and desirable work, call indeed for our warmest return of thanks.

Our dutiful acknowledgments, cannot, we humbly presume, be better manifested to our sovereign, than by a ready obedience to his commands, and a zealous attachment to his service, in promoting the welfare, peace, and good government of the Island; and our happy experience of your excellency's care and concern for our interest, so wisely and zealously exerted on every occasion that might affect either our present or future prosperity, does not only leave us without the least doubt of your hearty concurrence in this great and important design, but strongly engages our constant and fervent wishes, that the blessings of your excellency's administration may be very long continued to us, which has been so remarkably distinguished by an unvaried adherence to all those principles of government, which have ever been esteemed the surest foundation of a people's happiness.
